Modern Slavery - Our Supply Chain

– Due diligence processes and risk assessment method

LSM understands the importance of taking effective steps to ensure human trafficking and modern slavery are not tolerated at any level of the business.

LSM uses rigorous due diligence processes based on risk factors to help identify potential suppliers (including coverholders and delegated claims administrators) and prioritise suppliers who hold values similar to those of LSM, insisting on zero tolerance for modern slavery and human trafficking. We have also heavily invested in new processes to better manage stakeholder due diligence at the pre-engagement stage to further our commitment to responsible business.

Identification and analysis is of paramount importance to LSM. The following steps and procedures are designed to identify and assess areas of risk and ensure that all areas of LSM's business comply with LSM's values:

- Any material and high risk supply chains, delegated claims administrators and coverholders are asked to confirm compliance to ensure that they do not assist, contribute or actively participate in modern slavery and human trafficking. LSM engages with suppliers and contractors identified in key risk areas to remind them of LSM's expectations in this area and LSM will continue this process regularly throughout the supplier engagement lifecycle.
- Key contracts are subject to risk due diligence questionnaires and required to state their alignment with LSM's Modern Slavery statement.
- LSM reserves the right to audit any material or high risk supplier, contractor or TPA.

This statement has been made pursuant to the obligations arising under section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015. This statement should be considered to constitute the slavery and human trafficking statement for all UK operations (UK companies and UK branches of non-UK companies) within the Liberty Specialty Markets Group as further detailed below.
